Long, long ago there lived a kind fisher✓girl a stepfather and two small children. Their names were Gabby and Poppy. They lived in the middle of a scary dark forest. The family were very poor with no money at all because they didn't have great jobs. They lived in an old house and there weren't any crops after they had overheard.
All they had left was half a loaf of bread.

Since the stepfather was cold hearted and mean he ~~wasn't~~ considered sending the hungry children away. The mother didn't agree. He decided to send the children to the thickest part of the forest but the children were in the other room.
The stepfather kept on nagging so eventually she said "yes fine."
She was disappointed in herself. ~~Meanwhile~~ Poppy and Gabby had overheard them and Poppy was crying but Gabby thought of a plan. Gabby screamed outside and saw some pieces of plastic. She picked up the plastic and shoved it into her pockets and calmed her sister. "It will be ok," She explained. "How could it ever be ok we are never going to find the way back home?" "We are because I have a plan up my sleeve."

The following morning the cruel unkind stepfather yelled saying "get up you lazy children!" "We are going for a walk so come on don't waste your time!" They set off into a dense, spooky forest. They each got a basket of juicy and on the way Gabby dropped the pieces of plastic.
